

Las Pestañas de Chinchulina * Chinchulina's Eyelashes

Chinchulina es el orgullo del pueblo de Gueril. Con sus hermosas pestañas largas, alegra al que la vea pasar. Pero un buen día todo cambia. Que tragedia! Que vergüenza! Hasta que aparece Ruperto el burro, la biblioteca móvil del pueblo... Cuento bilingüe en español e inglés. Promueve la lectura y el amor por los libros. Chinchulina is the pride of the people of Gueril. With her beautiful, long eyelashes, she gladdens everyone's heart. But one day everything changes. What a tragedy! What a shame! Until Rupert the donkey, the town's bookmobile, appears... Bilingual story in Spanish and English. Promotes reading and the love of books.

MARTIN Tarté is a Panamanian novelist who grew up in a rural setting but was forged in the city. He has published two novels: Nos Reservamos el Derecho de Admisión (2008) and The Pink Boots (2011). He studied at the prestigious Creative Writing Contemporary School of Humanities (ECH) in Madrid, Spain. He has published several articles in various digital and print media, and participated in art exhibitions in Europe with his poetry. This is his first foray into children's literature, and he continues to work on many other novels that are waiting patiently to come to light. Martin is a true animal lover, but he feels a special affinity for the donkeys and vice versa, the only problem is that their hooves hinder them from typing in their browser www.martintarte.com to contact their favorite writer.

MARIA EUGENIA GONZALEZ is Argentine, a student of architecture and a self-taught artist. From an early age she began to eat the crayons that his mother gave her. But after she learned that it was more productive to draw with them, so grew her passion for drawing. Her drawings have been exhibited in several galleries in her city, but her dream was always to illustrate a children's book, and this means that her dream has come true. When she draws, she prefers the traditional: drawing paper, a pencil, an eraser, ink and watercolors. Occasionally, she also uses digital media.
